FRONTEND DEVELOPER STUDENT

PROFILE

As a former clinical physiotherapist, I have transitioned into a new career as a frontend developer, driven by a passion for programming and problem-solving. I love designing user-friendly interfaces and creating impactful solutions with JavaScript, HTML, and CSS – which is now where I dedicate most of my time and energy.

My background as a physiotherapist has equipped me with excellent communication skills and a natural ability to build trust and engage with clients. I am experienced in understanding and adapting to the needs of diverse individuals, a strength I now apply to development projects to create solutions that truly make a difference for users.

People who know me describe me as driven, curious, and ambitious, always ready to embrace new challenges. I strive to foster inclusive and positive work environments where everyone feels seen and heard, while contributing focus and enthusiasm to every project.
